

Agency Funds

A non-cash gift, such as a piece of property, can be a welcome contribution for a nonprofit organization. But a small nonprofit organization might not be equipped to accept such a gift. The Community Foundation helps these agencies through Nonprofit Agency Funds. The Foundation holds the assets of a nonprofit organization and distributes a fixed percentage – typically 5 percent – each year.

Nonprofit Agency Funds:

- Are permanent funds. The organization cannot take the money back.
- Are managed by the Community Foundation’s Investment Committee, which oversees the financial investments made with the funds by an outside manager selection with consulting help from Colonial Consulting Corporation, Inc. or may be individually managed.
- Do not operate like bank accounts. Distributions are made once a year, and if the organization decides not to receive the disbursement, the money is put back into the fund and reinvested.

There are other reasons for an organization to use a Nonprofit Agency Fund held at the Foundation:

If a Nonprofit Agency Fund is not right for your organization, then consider our Nonprofit Advantage Fund.

For more information on all Community Foundation funds, contact Christy Eckoff, director of gift planning, at 404.688.5525 and read more at: cfgreateratlanta.org.